Elderly Care Assistants are very important members of our local community. They look after our elderly residents. They make sure they are looked after which may include preparing meals, washing them and helping them with daily chores. There are two types of carer:

- Domestic - this means they go round and work in people's homes. You need a driving licence to do this job.
- The alternative is that you are an assistant within a care home

You need to be able to work as a team, be caring, understanding and a good listener to do this job.

People who employ carers are the NHS, care homes and care agencies.
